Teachers and parents

Before tackling these Orange Level Readers, a student will need to be able to do the following:

- Say the sounds made by the lower-case letters and capital letters shown below;
- Match the lower-case letters to the corresponding capital letters;
- Read (blend) regular words containing these letter sounds.

Letter sounds

s a t i p n

Capital Letters

S A T I

Tips for teachers and parents

- Some English words have silent letters, such as the 'e' in "gone," which are not pronounced when the word is read. In these books, silent letters are shown in faint type. Remind the student not to say the faint letters when blending the word.
- The letter 's' is sometimes pronounced /z/, especially at the ends of words such as "is" and "his." Students do not usually have trouble reading these words, but they might need some help and guidance at the beginning.

An important part of becoming a confident, fluent reader is a student's ability to understand what they are reading. Below are some suggestions on how to develop a student's reading comprehension.

- Encourage the student to think about what might happen next. It does not matter whether the answer is right or wrong, so long as the suggestion makes sense and demonstrates understanding.
- Pick out any vocabulary that might be new to the student and ask what (s)he thinks it means. If (s)he does not know, explain it and relate it to what is happening in the book.
- Encourage the student to summarize what (s)he has read.

What's in the book?

- What is Pat doing while Stan and Pip play snap?
- What is the dog called?
- Who breaks the coffee table?

What do you think?

- Look at the picture on page 5, how do you think Pip feels?
- Is Stan too competitive? Why do you say that?

Reading comprehension

I love the way the book is laid out. It helps new readers to gain confidence and fluency, with instructions for both parents and teachers. It's an amazing resource.

Elham Windrose, Teacher

The angry animals chased the family out of the farm and into the woods, attacking them all the way. Only Betsy was left unharmed and at home.

The two frogs hopped and hopped, but they were still far from the top. As the day got hotter, the frogs got more and more tired. Around midday, they each stopped in a cool, damp spot for a while to catch their breath.

As they rested, the two frogs looked back at where they had come from. The beach-side frog looked back at the sea, with the sunlight twinkling on it. At the same time, the stream-side frog looked back at her stream, glinting in the sunshine.

Fox looked all night, but he found no food. He crept back home to his den, tired and hungry. But then he saw a crow in an old tree. The crow had a big lump of cheese in her beak.

"A-ha!" said Fox to himself. "Food!" Fox trotted up to the base of the tree and looked up at the crow.
"Good morning, my dear Crow," he said.

The Sultan's favorite animal was a huge elephant. He had been given the elephant as a gift. Because the Sultan loved the elephant, he had his own roomy stall to live in, plenty of food, and even his own servant. However, despite all of this, the elephant often felt lonely.

One evening when he had been practicing with his bow and arrow, he decided to go for a swim in the sea. He put his bow and his quiver of arrows down on the sand and waded into the waves. He swam for a bit and then floated on his back and looked up at the twinkling stars in the sky.

Then he looked at the big silver Moon shining in the night sky. He could see patterns and shapes on the surface of the Moon and he started to think about what it was like on the Moon. He swam back to the shore and walked to where he had left his bow and arrows.

"This is a magic porridge pot. All you have to do is tap the side and say 'Cook porridge pot, cook!' When you want it to stop, you tap it twice and say 'Stop porridge pot, stop!'" Jon thanked the old lady, took the porridge pot, and hurried home to try it out.

His mother and brother looked at the battered pot and said, "What have you found? Why have you picked up that dirty old pot?" "An old lady gave it to me," replied Jon. "I gave her my lunch because she was hungry. She says it is a magic pot."

Teaching is multi-sensory and active, with actions, activities, and songs. Each year of teaching also provides revision and consolidation of learning from previous years.

Reading Comprehension & Writing Skills provides two further weekly lessons. In the first, children explore a variety of rich texts that interweave the spelling, vocabulary, and grammar learned earlier that week. The second lesson uses those texts as a springboard for stimulating ideas and introducing strategies to promote independent writing.

Together, they offer a perfect package, giving young children the skills they need to become confident readers and enthusiastic writers.
